SPORTS WRITERS WILL VISIT
DEPAUW AGAIN NEXT FALL.

COMING ON OLD GOLD DAY

Russell Alexander Attends Banquet
And Extends Invitation, Sigma Delta Chi Sponsors Meeting.

DePauw University, through Sigma Delta Chi, nationalistic journalistic fraternity, will again entertain the Indiana Sports Review Writer's Association on this campus for their fall convention. The invitation to hold the second, semi-annual meeting here was extended to the sports writers at the Indianapolis banquet last Friday night in the Claypool hotel.

This banquet is an annual feature of the state basketball tournament. E. L. Higgs of Connersville presided as president of the association. The organization adopted a resolution deploring the present system of selling tickets to the state finals and asked the board of control to make some change for next year.

A plan was submitted by the association to divide the available tickets into sixteen parts, sell none of the tickets until the regionals had been played, and then allow the regional winners to take care of its own fans and those of schools represented in that regional. Any un-sold tickets were to be returned to Indianapolis for distribution.

The date for the fall convention at DePauw was not set definitely although an effort will be made to have Old Gold Day, Homecoming for DePauw University. The feature attraction will be the football game between DePauw and Illinois.

Russell Alexander, representing Sigma Chi and DePauw University, extended the invitation to the banquet. It is hoped that this convention will be held on the DePauw campus each year in October. The Sports Writers Association has nearly fifty members now and a larger one will be made soon to double that.

FATORS NEW CONSTITUTION

WABASH, Ind., Mar. 17 (UP)—Lewis Taylor, vice president of the Indiana Farm Bureau, and member of Governor Leslie's tax study commission, urged adoption of a new constitution for Indiana and a new tax plan for the country when he spoke at a farm bureau meeting at Urbana. "Under the present system of taxation," Taylor said, "the class of citizens who get 10 per cent of the national income pay 95 1/2 per cent of the taxes. Since the burden of this tax falls upon property which has ceased to produce an income, it soon will be the same as confiscating the property. When that point is reached, the government will be forced to look to new measures of taxation. "The solution is a tax upon income,—the only measure of ability to pay. "There was nothing but property to complicate government when the Indiana constitution was drawn in 1850. This constitution is as much out of date for modern conditions and business as are the business methods of that day compared to those of 1930."

Fillmore Man Found Insane

SAMUEL E. THOMAS SUFFERING OF HALLUCINATIONS,
PHYSICIANS FIND

Samuel E. Thomas, age 56 years, Fillmore man, was found insane by three local physicians at an insanity inquest at the county jail Saturday afternoon. The physicians, in statements filed with the court, reported that Thomas was suffering of hallucinations, was violent, thought some one was trying to do him harm, and has homicidal tendencies. Physicians who examined Thomas were Dr. W. M. O'Brien, Dr. W. M. McGaughey and Dr. C. B. O'Brien. Thomas was taken into custody at the office of Dr. McGaughey Thursday morning when he went with a demand that he have an immediate operation. Two policemen, posing as surgeons, took Thomas to the county jail.

Thomas first exhibited signs of insanity three weeks ago, a statement by his wife said. The present attack came on gradually, it was said. He has suffered three or four previous insanity attacks, according to the report filed with the court.

The insanity victim has lived at Fillmore for the past six years where he has been employed as a foreman on the Pennsylvania railroad. It was intimated in the report that a crash between a hand car on which Thomas was riding and a railroad train, might have resulted in a shock that affected the man's mental balance.

Thomas has become violent since being lodged in the county jail. Last week he broke all the window glass out of the down-tairs section of the jail where he was confined. Sunday night he stopped up a wash basin and then turned on the water, flooding the jail. A plumber had to be called Monday to repair the damage.

Alva Harden, 24, who had pleaded guilty to the same charges, was fined $1 and costs on each count and given a penal farm sentence of 30 days.

Severe reprimands were given Roberts and Harden by the court. Judge Russell told Roberts he was giving him a jail sentence rather than sending him to the farm where he would be associated with older criminals, only on account of his age and advised him to steer clear of bad companions in the future. Harden was given a light sentence on his plea that there was no one to look after his wife and small child.

WASHINGTON NEW CHAMPS

HATCHETS CHOP WAY TO TITLE
OVER FIGHTING MUNCIE
BEARCATS

Washington's Hatchets copped the 1930 state high school basketball title Saturday night by defeating the Muncie Bearcats, 32 to 21, at the Butler fieldhouse. The losers held a 14 to 12 advantage at the half but a late second period rally brought the net championship to Coach Burl Frid-dle's aggregation.

Englehart and DeJernett were the big stars in Washington's victory in the final battle. Mann, Muncie center, kept his team in the running. The Hatchets won their way to the titular round by drubbing Connersville in the afternoon. The Bearcats upset Frankfort, 17 to 14, in the 3:30 p. m. game to go to the finals.

Washington proved a popular champion with the crowd of 14,000 howling hardwood court enthusiasts who saw the deciding clash. Much praise also given the Muncie boys for their valiant stand against the bigger Washington players.

DEADLOCK ON FRENCH NAVY ISSUE BROKEN

DELEGATES TO LONDON CON-FERENCE RESUME PARLEY
WITH CONFIDENCE

DEADLOCK CAUSED A DELAY

Officials At International Naval Conference Arrive At "New Formulas."

LONDON, March 17 (UP)—The naval conference deadlock on the issue of France's heavy tonnage demands appeared to have been broken today, and the delegates resumed their conversations with more confidence than at any time since the fall of the French cabinet, four weeks ago.

In a conference at Chequers, Premier J. Ramsay MacDonald and Andre Tardieu yesterday arrived at "new formulas" which will be the basis of further discussion, with the possibility that France's demands may be cut. The Sunday meeting is described in some quarters as "the most important of the entire conference." It appears, at least, to have given the parley a new lease of life.

Acting with MacDonald in the conversation yesterday, was A. V. Alexander, first lord of the admiralty. With Tardieu were Foreign Minister Aristide Briand, Rene Massigli, the noted French expert, and Jacques Louis Rumensil, minister of marine. In a written declaration to the press after the conference, Premier Tardieu indicated that the two delegations discussed new terms designed to produce some measure of agreement sufficient to permit the conference to find its way out of the impasse that has existed ever since France first made her tonnage claims.

BIG MERGER PROPOSAL

INDIANAPOLIS, March 17 (UP)—Public Service Commission hearings on the proposal of Insull interests to merge $70,000,000 worth of Indiana utilities were resumed today after a recess of nearly three months.

Volumes of statistics showing the valuations of power, light, traction, heat, bus and ice company properties involved in the merger, were before the five commission members today as they began the interrupted work of deciding merits of the merger petition.

Although several witnesses who testified previously were re-examined today, the interest centered on testimony of appraisal engineers for the commission, in which it was explained how their appraisal figures differed from those of Insull engineers. On some properties involved, the difference amounted to many thousands of dollars.

Some of the witnesses and engineers also were questioned by Harvey Harmon, chief counsel for intervenors opposing the merger. Harmon, a former member of the Public Service Commission, contends the merger is illegal because the properties involved, are too widely scattered.

Very little new testimony is expected to be offered before the issue is decided. It was believed today that the opposing factions will attempt to clear up controversial matters and to have interpretations made of figures and charts that have been submitted by engineers.

Dr. Eckhardt Gives Talk Sunday Night

HUNGARIAN SPEAKS AT REGU-LAR YOUNG PEOPLE'S SERVICE

Dr. Tibor Eckhardt, noted young Hungarian diplomat and journalist, spoke before the Young Peoples meeting in the Little Theater Sunday night on the subject of "Seeds for a New Year." Dr. Eckhardt, being intimately acquainted with conditions in central Europe, showed the many existing conditions in that territory that could easily be the spark to ignite another great conflagration.

The almost arbitrary division of territory among the smaller nations of central Europe following the world war, has left many of these small states with a ruling minority among six or seven nationalities, the speaker said. Disgruntled over existing boundaries the league of nations itself, has been beset with the problems over disputed cities and territories.

Most of the smaller countries are impoverished and a general decline of prices and standards has been in existence for the last twelve years there. The geographic isolation of many of these along the rigid boundary laws and high protective tariffs has tended to discourage trade.

Most of these small countries were at one time parts of great empires and have had their affairs handled as a great unit. Simmered down to small states there is not the funds nor leadership available as existed under the larger units.

The difference between these states and America is psychological. Dr. Eckhardt maintained. In Europe each nationality is imbued with the idea of taking up the new form and becoming Americanized as soon as possible. A lack of general education is blamed for this.

Dr. Eckhardt stated that it was his belief that addition of new details would not solve the problem but that a complete reorganization from beginning to end would be necessary to solve the problem of central Europe, for years the center of conflict over issues and boundaries.

SPAIN PAYS HIGH HOMAGE TO DE RIVERA

FORMER SPANISH DICTATOR
DIES IN PARIS LATIN QUARTER.

RULED WITH IRON HAND

DeRivera Was Voluntary Exile To France. To Be Buried In Family Vault

PARIS, March 17 (UP)—Spaniards of every walk of life, many of them sworn enemies of the six-year dictatorship of Miguel Primo de Rivera, today flocked to the little hotel on the left bank of the Seine to pay tribute to the man who died yesterday, six weeks after he laid down his power.

The body will be removed at once to Spain, and burial will be in the family vault at Gerez, near Seville, in accordance with his request.

The exile of de Rivera, whose iron hand had upheld the Spanish throne for six years, was brief. Strangely enough, it bore out a prediction he made when he arrived in Paris. "I shall never see my beloved Spain again," he said to a United Press correspondent. But he refused to amplify his statement.

De Rivera had suffered severely from influenza in the past week, and his heart was believed weakened by his illness. He is known to have given evidence of severe heart strain on Thursday.

So completely had the general seemed to recover from his influenza that his personal physician, Dr. Alberto Bandelac de Pariente, planned to take him to a private sanitarium at Frankfurt, Germany, to give him continued treatments for diabetes.

His worry over the political strife in Spain following his relinquishment of the power, is believed to have hastened the end.

De Rivera came to Paris, a voluntary exile, after surrendering the power he assumed in September, 1923 doing away with constitutional government "to save Spain." He had promised a return to normal government this year. Following his resignation, it was announced he was leaving the country, in order not to disturb the political situation that arose after his abdication of the dictatorship.

His son, Miguel, who discovered the death, was in Paris as the result of a duel in defense of his father's name, following which it was "suggested" to him that Paris would be healthier climate for him, and he was escorted to the border.

"Has a PLAN of his own"
YOU, too, need a plan of your own—particularly if you have a wife, and children not yet self-supporting... In brief, a plan that will put your family's future protection on a solid business-like foundation... The plan takes the form of one or more Trust Funds, incorporated in and made part of your will:
—you name us your executor and trustee.
—you tell us how you wish the assets of your estate invested.
—you name the ones you wish to receive the income, how often and in what amounts to make the payments.
—you empower us to make payments out of the principal if serious family needs develop.
—you state how long each trust fund is to remain in effect, and when the invested capital is finally to be turned over to your family.
Most men now-a-days want a plan that will definitely take care of the financial requirements of their families in the years to come.
If you are interested in having "a plan of your own," come in and see us.

A regular income is one of the things that a Trust Fund is designed to provide, and one of the things that she should have.

TWO HELD FOR THEFT

INDIANAPOLIS, March 17 (UP)—Two men, believed associates of a Cleveland gunman who wounded a man and woman while shooting at a policeman in Cleveland Friday night, were held at Indianapolis today charged with theft of money orders.

Federal authorities believe they have stolen between $25,000 and $50,000 in money orders from New York, Pittsburgh, Kansas City and other cities. The men, who were arrested, held 17 money orders for $100 each, said to have been obtained in a Detroit pharmacy.

The men gave their names as Jack Lane, Kansas City, and Claude Sweetland, Chicago.

Detectives and a postal inspector said they also found $300 in cashiers' checks on a Kansas City bank, $400 in cash and a new revolver in the men's baggage.

Farm Accounts Show Paying Or Losing Features

PURDUE USES RECORDS KEPT IN PUTNAM COUNTY FOR PAST YEAR

Farm accounts kept in different parts of Indiana in co-operation with Purdue University indicate that variation in farm income is more largely a result of variation in gross receipts than in operating expenses. Of the farms in Putnam county on which accounts were kept in 1928, the average gross receipts on the one-third most profitable farms were $4,254, compared to $2,371 on the one-third least profitable, while the operating expenses were $1,535 on the most profitable compared to $1,599 on the least profitable. These are representative of the receipts and expenses on the most profitable and least profitable farms in other areas of Indiana.

"The men who are building up good gross incomes are the ones closing their books in the black. The most profitable farms in every area where records were summarized had higher crop yields than the average of the community. They kept more livestock, they received higher returns for each dollar's worth of feed fed and more crops and livestock were cared for per man than on the average farm of the county," said J. C. Bottom of the Purdue staff recently in discussing these records.

In Noble county where 59 records were closed in 1928, it was not the dairy farms nor the beef cattle nor any particular groups of farms that had the highest incomes. It was the individual farms that were fairly good in everything and that were producing the crops and livestock adapted to the farm that were most profitable. Each farm business presents an individual problem and while certain factors apply to all farms, they do not apply to all in the same degree. The emphasis is to be given to the different phases of any farm business may be best determined by a simple system of accounts.

CARD OF THANKS

We wish to thank our friends and neighbors for their many acts of kindness and sympathy shown to us during our recent bereavement; also Rev. Sherrell, Charles Rector, the Bee-Hive Rebekah Lodge, the singers and those who expressed their sympathy with flowers.
Thomas Lisby and Nieces.

IN MEMORIAM

"Leave us have their time to fall and flowers to wilt at the north wind's cold blast, but thou, O death! hath all seasons for thine own."

Milton H. Day, son of Isaac and Mary Day was born in Putnam county, Indiana, Jan. 13, 1855; died at his home in Fillmore March 8, 1930; aged 75 years, 1 month and 23 days.

He has been in failing health for several months and seriously ill about four weeks. He was united in marriage to Miss Mollie Morris March 16, 1876. To this union was born one daughter, Edith, who became the wife of Scott Couch. Mrs. Couch died in early life, leaving a baby daughter, died. Mr. and Mrs. Day took this little granddaughter into their home and with unbounded love and devotion tenderly reared her to womanhood. She has tenderly cared for him during his last days. His good wife passed away Dec. 13, 1923.

Mr. Day was baptized into the Christian church, March 17, 1876. There are some things death can not take away. The voice of welcome which was ours to know; the remembrance of kindly deeds; the friendliness of a good neighbor; the willing hands to help carry another's burden. These are some of the things that make the memory of his life worth while.

The miracle of unfolding leaves in the spring, flowers in their beauty and fragrance, with such evidence of life we are apt to think that nothing would fade. Yet a few frosts, and where life was so abundant, all perishes.

"We all fade as a leaf."—Isaiah 64:6.

The kindly wrinkled face and the silvered hair are the crown and glory, the fruitage of age. So it was with him, our friend and neighbor, whom we miss today.

Surviving him are a sister, Mrs. Gertrude Smythe of Portland, Ore. Two brothers, Robert Day of Greencastle and John Day of Fillmore.

A granddaughter, Mrs. Oscar Lydick; a great grandson, Lee Edward Lydick, on whom he lavished a loving grandfather's love, a son-in-law, Scott Couch, and a grand-son-in-law, Oscar Lydick. Many other friends and relatives mourn his going.

"Over the hills of time
To the valley of endless years;
Over the roads of woe
To the land that is free from tears;
Up from the haunts of men
To the place where the angels are,
This is the march of mortality,
To a wonderful goal afar."

A Year of Outstanding Accomplishment

The management of the Standard Oil Company (Indiana) takes both pride and pleasure in directing the attention of the Company's host of friends and patrons to its accomplishments during the past year.

The financial statement just released evidences 1929 as the most successful year in the Company's history.

To the great public, whose enthusiastic and continued patronage has made this possible, the Company returns appreciative thanks.

To the army of 27,122 employees, who have so ably carried out the policy of the Company in giving to the public a complete and satisfying service, much credit is due.

During the past year, this Company has taken a great stride forward by acquiring control of Pan American Petroleum and Transport Company and subsidiaries with its five million acres of oil lands, thus providing an assured source of crude petroleum and securing expanded marketing facilities.

This Company has likewise extended its marketing facilities in the great Rocky Mountain area through the Midwest Refining Company.

Now the touring motorist will find Standard Oil Company (Indiana) emblems of friendly, satisfying service in much new territory.

The motorists of the Middle West have been quick to accept the New Red Crown Ethyl Gasoline, introduced late in 1929. They have grasped the significance of a fuel that meets perfectly the needs of the new high compression engine and leads new life to the veterans of the highway.

An accurate idea of the degree of acceptance by the public of Standard Oil Company (Indiana) products is reflected in sales of 39,017,894 barrels of finished petroleum products in 1929 as compared with 35,432,806 barrels in 1928.

The latest achievement of the Manufacturing Department is the development of a new motor oil—which finds expression in New 100-Via and New Polarine, being introduced with great promise to the public, coincident with the publication of this message.

The success of the Stock Purchasing Plan is emphasized by pointing out that after being in effect nine years, approximately 75% of the stock distributed under this plan remains in the hands of employees—which demonstrates the value of employee partnership.

The Stock Purchasing Plan, the Annuity Plan and the Death Benefit Plan constitute the management's tangible expression of its appreciation of the unwavering loyalty and tireless efforts of the employees.

The Board of Directors is gratified by the constantly mounting number of stockholders—now 81,022. This is approximately 30,000 more than were of record a year ago.

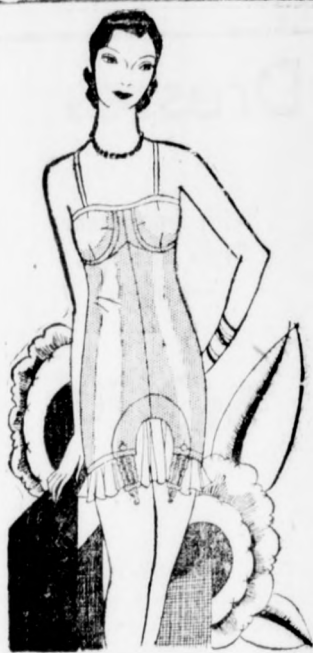

With this rapidly spreading ownership it seems certain that 1930 will be another year of achievement—greater in progress, greater in opportunity to serve the millions of people who call the Middle West home.

THE GRANADA

"Sweetie" Now Playing At Granada

"Sweetie" the musical production playing today and Tuesday at the Granada, has Nancy Carroll in the title role. It is a title which ties up with the popular opinion of this very charming, easy-on-the-eyes actress, Nancy as "Sweetie"—she's just that. Helen Kane also contributes a big share of the pulling power to the film. She is a name that has had a tremendous vogue in recent months because of her unique "baby-talk" singing style as exemplified on over 60,000,000 Victor phonograph records. In "Sweetie" Helen Kane sings three songs—all of them in winsome, cuddly "hoopa-doo-pa-doo" manner. This is her second picture. Her first in the Richard Dix talking picture, "Nothing But the Truth."

Jack Oakie, while not an old timer whose name has become firmly planted in the public mind, is nevertheless less making a rapid bid for that kind of desirable fame. In pictures for little over a year, he has climbed very quickly, mainly because he is a new, and very ideal, type of talking screen comic. He has a great voice and he knows how to use it for maximum laughs. He appeared in "The Dummy," "The Man I Love," and recently in the leading role in "Fast Company."

The other names, while not strong from a so-called "box-office" point of view, are strong in their power to round out the cast with a perfect support.

"Sweetie" is not just a talking picture with music. It is a lavish song-and-dance comedy revue—a dazzling extravaganza, an enlarged edition of the best girl-and-music entertainment that even Broadway could offer.

"OLD IRONSIDES" PUTS OUT TO SEA TODAY

BOSTON, March 17 (UP)—"Old Ironsides," originally launched more than 132 years ago, took to the sea again today.

Reconditioned as result of contributions amounting to $400,000 from America's school children, the famed frigate, about which poems have been penned and songs sung, was refloated to continue a colorful career which began in the waning years of the 18th century.

Appropriately enough, the scene of today's launching was less than a mile from the spot where the battle-scarred craft, officially known as the U. S. S. Constitution, but affectionately known as Old Ironsides, first went down the ways on October 21, 1797.

Only the simplest ceremonies marked the frigate's emergence from the drydock where it had rested nearly three years while shipwrights worked to restore it to a semblance of its erstwhile glory. Flood-gates were opened, Old Ironsides was floated, and, flaunting flags and bunting from three temporary masts, moved majestically in tow to a neighboring pier. There it was tied up to await installation of permanent masts and rigging.

Eventually, if all goes well, the venerable war-ship will make a tour of American ports so that school children can board and inspect the craft whose conquests of the seas crowd many places of United States history.

"GENERAL CRACK"

BY GEORGE PREEDY

Copyright 1928 by Dodd Mead & Co., Inc.
The Warner Bros. & Vitaphone production starring John Barrymore, is based on this novel.

SYNOPSIS
General Crack, as head of the imperial army of King Leopold has vanquished the enemy and plans to crown the king Emperor. Leopold had wished to marry Princess Eleonora, reasons of state forced him to yield her in favor of Crack. who married her. Gabor, smarting at an insult inflicted by Crack, forges a letter from Eleonora to Leopold, protesting undying love. Leopold, believing, sets out in disguise for Crack's estate. Gabor follows. The old Duchess, entrusted with the care of Eleonora, urges Leopold to leave at once.

"The master of Ottenheim would scarcely give you that leave, Sir," replied the old woman, grimly. "I dare swear he knows not you are here; and if you insist upon staying, she added, with spirit, 'I can assure Your Majesty that you play the tyrant to very little purpose. It is but a poor conquest to frighten two poor, weak, silly women.'"
— Leopold glanced at Eleonora, and said, softly:
"Do I frighten you, sweet? Do I frighten you?" And she shook her head and smiled at him, as if the Duchess were not there. The old woman was shivering. She leant heavily on her ebony stick with the silver apple on the top, which of late she had so frequently used. "I cannot debate this calmly," he said, "perhaps Your Majesty will speak with Colonel Pons."

"Let Colonel Pons join his mas- ter," answered Leopold, shortly. "Ay, and all the garrison also. Who is Prince Christian to keep his own estate here in Ottenheim? Tomorrow there shall be troops from Vienna. I have sent for them. They will relieve the guard of Ottenheim."
"You give me unquiet thoughts," said the Duchess, with quivering lips, "and I am dismayed and undone."
"And surprised, too, I think?" smiled Leopold. "Did you credit me with perfect resignation to my allotted fate? You had a hand in that too, I think, Madame; were one of those intrigues at Dursheim who took Eleonora away from me."
"Good God!" cried the Duchess frantically. "All this is extravagance, no woman breathing is worth the trouble you give yourself, Sir! It has never been my humor to do any one injury—let alone yourself, whom I have always regarded as my Emperor. She was innocent enough to encourage you, and you were innocent enough to be encouraged. Let that all go, Sir, as children's play; and I beseech you, let us have an end of these crosses and afflictions. Return, I entreat you, to Dursheim!"
"Do not rail," said Leopold; "no doubt you are sad and ill satisfied. But as you say, we can let these past matters be. I will take supper with you and Eleonora. Will you have patience with me before Eleonora? May I not bribe you. In her presence, to wink at my manifest faults?"
"If you will go soon, I will be your bounden servant," said the Duchess, eagerly. "I will speak fair to your face and behind your back. Sir, if you will only begone—if you will not speak with her alone!"
"You guard her well!" smiled Leopold, sadly. "Prince Christian owes you a rich reward, Madame."
"Sir, if you loved her passionately—nay, even if you loved her well, you could not see her ruined."
"Who said I loved her?" asked Leopold, faintly. "You take, Madame, strange matters on your tongue."
"I am old," stammered the Duchess, "and you must allow me a certain freedom. I spoke thus openly to Prince Christian, because I have a great affection for the girl; and he respected what he loved."
"Leave it!" said Leopold, interrupting swiftly. "leave it. I know she is as I last left her. Do me the courtesy to speak no more about it."
"And do you, Sir, forbear as he forbore?" cried the Duchess. "With whatever intention and purpose you came here, I do entreat you to forbear it."
"You think me fond and facile," smiled Leopold. "Contain your alarm, Madame; there is nothing so odd and singular in my visit here. The world is full of sudden accidents, as you should know by now. I entreat you to speak with more formality," he added, haughtily.
"I can scarce speak at all!" sighed the Duchess, trembling.
Eleonora entered the room lightly, servants with candles coming in behind her, so that she brought the sweetness and radiance of light with her.
"I have been mowed up here so long," smiled Eleonora, dimpling with mirth, "that I know little of the world's doings; and therefore you, Monseigneur, must entertain me with tales of what goes on abroad."
"But you," said Leopold, "will find no merit in battles and sieges, in the intrigues of politicians; and that is all I have to tell. It is to get away from those, Eleonora, that I have come to Ottenheim."
"What shall we talk of, then?" asked Eleonora, her gaze still smilingly upon his face. "For here there is no news, save all the birds and many of the beasts have died, and everything is desolate and dull. The flowers, Sir, lasted long, but even they have gone now; and neither the sky nor the river is blue any longer."
"And that is all your news?" breathed Leopold. "And mine does not come to as much as that! For I had not even noticed, as I rode, that all the lustre was gone from the landscape; and for your birds and beasts, Eleonora, I may easily get you others when the spring comes."
"He speaks," thought the Duchess, "as he were going to make her his wife. I pray God it be no worse than that!" She was in the greatest state of disorder at her own fulfity. When she heard the drums and trumpets sounding as usual from the garrison, calling the soldiers into the barracks for the night, she shivered with an even deeper fear. How useless this defiance of the enemy when the enemy was already within the gates!

She gazed long at him.

she muttered, "Eleonora, child, leave us! Go to your room, and take up your furs and cloak, and get yourself ready for supper. No doubt Monseigneur will honour us with his company at that meal."
"I shall," replied Leopold, calmly, "a little while remain; and do you go as she bids you, Eleonora, and adorn yourself with your prettiest gowns, so that we may, a little while defy our fortune; a little pleasure we may snatch. I think," he added, in deep tenderness, "you have been but of a melancholy, cloudy humor here, shut away so long. Let us dispel that, if only for an hour!"
With a breathless, amazed timidity, and yet with high-mountaining spirits, Eleonora hurried first to one and then to the other, and then left the room, Leopold escorting her to the tall, florid door.
When he returned, the Duchess was still standing erect, leaning upon her stick and glaring at him.
"I am bold enough, Sir," she said, immediately, "to see this visit to my charge as a fault, and to entreat you to leave us at once."
"You seem to hold me in slight esteem, Madame," smiled Leopold. "When I have spoken a little with the Princess Eleonora I will return to Dursheim, as has ever been my intention."
"Let us find a quarrel in it, Sir," said the old woman, firmly. "you will return before you see the Princess, whom I have just sent to her chamber to avoid such an interview."
"What do you know of me and her?" asked Leopold.
"Enough," replied the Duchess, at once, "not to leave you alone together."
"You make little scruple of the matter, Madame," he replied, haughtily. "And I find also that you are hot in Prince Christian's favour."
"It is his house," said the Duchess, shortly, "and his wife."
"His house, yes," answered Leopold, "and I shall not long trouble him. But scarcely his wife, Madame; that Lutheran ceremony was nothing."
"I thank you, Sir," said the Duchess, again with her stiff courtesy, "for your good usage. I also am a Lutheran, and you know, Sir, as I know, that that marriage was notably a marriage, before all the world; and, I believe, the price you paid for the services of Prince Christian, which have, Sir, proved invaluable."
"Colonel Pons is here," she said, basely; "perhaps Your Majesty will speak with Colonel Pons."

"Let Colonel Pons join his master," answered Leopold, shortly. "Ay, and all the garrison also. Who is Prince Christian to keep his own estate here in Ottenheim? Tomorrow there shall be troops from Vienna. I have sent for them. They will relieve the guard of Ottenheim."

NOMENAL GAIN IN TRUST SERVICES

By JOHN G. LONSDALE
President American Bankers
Association

SO phenomenal has been the increase of trust business that statisticians are unable to keep a true record of its advancement.

There are now something like 3,500 active trust departments in banks in America, while in 1906 only 165 active trust departments had been established. In becoming the custodians or the guardians of the property of others, bankers as John G. Lonsdale, same what has been fittingly described as one of the "most exalted human relationships ever created by law." They become at once a big brother, a big sister, an advisor, or a confessor, sworn so to conduct themselves that clients will be won to them by their ability and integrity.

Thousands of little children have received an education and have been started off right in life through the trust department's safe keeping and guidance of the family estate, numberless widows have been protected from merciless stock swindlers, many thousands of business men have been relieved of troublesome details in the conduct of their business through the creation of a living trust and still others have safeguarded their business enterprises through life insurance trusts.

The favorable reaction of the public toward trust department service is not accidental. It may be traced jointly to the growing intelligence of the American people in financial affairs and to advertising to the world at large the merits of trust services. Advertising used in a sensible, judicious way is necessary, a power that has accomplished much good for humanity. Among the detailed services, rendered by a trust department, the one that seems to be winning favor the fastest is the life insurance trust. Life insurance is the quickest known way of creating an estate. In reality it affords the possessor the opportunity of setting up a positive monetary safeguard for his family and then paying for it on the installment plan.

A married man is not fair to his family if he fails to carry life insurance. I would say to the young man, "Buy insurance before you buy the ring," and to the young woman I would say, "Marry no man so thoughtless as to scoff at life insurance."

MODERN EDUCATION REVERSES OLD IDEAS

Business Institutes Use the Plan of Getting People to Think Rather Than Merely to Learn.

There is one general principle, at the basis of all good teaching and it is that a person learns more readily by assimilating the experiences which he himself encounters than in any other way, says Harold Stonier, National Educational Director of the American Institute of Banking. This institute is the educational section of the American Bankers Association through which 35,000 bank men and women are receiving scientific instruction in their chosen business.

"The most advanced people in teaching today are emphasizing the importance of activity on the part of the student," he says. "In the school-room of former days we often heard such phrases as, 'Be still,' 'Learn by heart,' 'Don't do that.' 'What does the book say?' The newer education asks, 'What do you think?' 'What was your reaction to that experiment?' 'What did you discover?' 'What reasons have you for answer?'"

The New School Calls for Action

"The 'expressing' school is taking the place of the repressing and the tening school. The classroom is becoming an open forum, a studio of self-expression, a place of mental growth. The modern concepts of education are personal experimentation, individual investigation, critical discussion and creative self-expression. The pupil really learns only as he is able to assimilate the new meanings of facts and principles with his previous experiences. Activities therefore constitute the pivotal factor around which are grouped the new factors in education. The primary responsibility of the teacher is to furnish a constant stream of activities which will afford the stimulating urge to mental growth.

"Education is a process of experimenting, and the program of the institute is so arranged as to give the greatest opportunity to gain by such experience. Through this we develop the art of thinking. Thinking has been described as the ability to handle experience and to bring it to bear on a problem. Effective thinking arises when we are presented with the choice of conduct. Our previous experiences become helpful as we marshal them and bring them to bear upon the matter of our choice."

The students in the American Institute of Banking by reason of the fact that they continue to go on about their employment in banks while taking the banking association's study courses have an opportunity to combine learning with practical thinking and action

ALARMED at the increase in industrial accidents in New York, which have grown from 318,647 to 333,356 in 1929 and resulted in the award of more than $42,000,000 by the New York State Industrial Commission in 100,462 cases, fifty thousand firms and more than fifteen trade organizations are participating in a safety campaign which started March 1st and will continue for three months, according to an announcement by the Greater New York Industrial Safety Committee.

With more than 96,000 persons in the United States meeting death by accident in 1928 and the possibility of a huge total when the 1929 figures are released, the economic loss entailed is so startling, aside from the dislocation of many homes throughout the land, that commercial and civic organizations are uniting with various foundation and research societies in the endeavor to reduce the accidental death rate by a national campaign of education.

California, ranking high in the number of automobile accidents and shocked at the number of injuries and fatalities, has inaugurated a campaign to impress on the mind of every motorist the necessity for caution and "Safety Always" by the adoption of drastic road rules and sensational signs.

Aside from the injuries by concussion thousands of motorists suffer lacerations from splintered glass which result in disfigurement or death. Fear of this has brought

She is seen in a part that exactly fits her talent, that of a girl who finds love and later interrupted by the predicament presented owing to a love affair between her boy friend's father and her mother, which brings about a story of great interest.

The cast is a fine one including Lewis Stone, Belle Bennett and Robert Montgomery. This picture is being attended by the management of the Voncastle, who are assured of a fine evening's entertainment.

This production is one of the few silent pictures of the standard which will play at the Voncastle, prior to the installation of Vitaphone equipment, which will within a week or so be Vitaphone talking pictures, the leading Broadway attraction.

a demand for non-scattering glass as the element next in importance to brakes in the avoidance of sanguinary accidents. Many automobile manufacturers, recognizing this factor of safety, have made this glass standard for windshields.

Some of the higher priced cars have used non-scattering glass as standard equipment throughout the car—doors, windows and windshields. And, on the first of the year one of the leading medium priced cars set the pace by adopting its complete equipment.

Statistics offer a graphic picture of the road recklessness that has made the United States the world's record holder for accidents. While the death rate from all accidents decreased 20 per cent from 1913 to 1921, there was an increase of 24 per cent from 1921 to 1927. Automobile accidents are a very conspicuous factor, showing a steady increase since 1913. From the latter date to 1921 an increase of 100 per cent was experienced, and from 1921 to 1927 the death rate continued its upward climb by 100 per cent.

No other nation in the world equals our death rate from accidents and in most cases more than double the more important nations such as Italy, in Germany and the United States, which the population is greater to the square mile, survey of the facts indicated the attention devoted to accident prevention has been less satisfactory than in health work directed against accidents.

Accidents not only cause a loss of life and property, but also a loss of six per cent of all deaths in the United States, but there are six causes of death by accidents that have greater importance
